

ABSTRACT

A lampshade folding structure to achieve minimum packing volume thus to reduce costs of packing material and transportation essentially comprised of a support frame to stretch up a soft shade between an upper and a lower rings; each ring provided with at least two pivoting devices so that when folded, both rings are folded into semi-circular shape and put on the same plane with the support frame removed to facilitate packaging, transportation, carriage and storage.

10

15

20

25

30